LOUISBURG COLLEGE OFFERS STUDENTS WEB-BASED CAREER AND EDUCATION COUNSELING

Louisburg, NC — Louisburg College is pleased to announce the availability of a new web-based career guidance and education planning system for its students.

The system, called SIGI³ (System of Integrated Guidance and Information) helps students explore career options and create a personalized educational and career plan that's right for them.

“SIGI³ helps student identify what's important to them in a job,” explains Fonda Porter, the College's director of counseling services. According to Porter, the new system poses questions such as, ‘Is money or job security more important to you? How important is personal fulfillment? How do you feel about being in a management position?’ SIGI³ also show students which occupations are best-suited to their majors. “Sometimes students study for a career and find out later it's not what they thought,” Porter explains. “SIGI³ provides current, reliable, in-depth information about hundreds of occupations. Students can see what jobs are in demand, what skills employers want, and how to prepare. They then can set goals and plan their next steps.”

The SIGI³ program is free to students and doesn't require prior computer experience. For more information about the SIGI³ program at Louisburg College, please contact Ms. Dani Carroll, career coordinator in the office of Student Life, at 919-497-1410.
